

Injuries Board success

THE Personal Injuries Assessment Board has paid out €15m in awards in just over a year.

It claimed success yesterday for forcing Irish people to admit blame instead of "hiding behind years of legal argument".

According to PIAB chief executive Patricia Byron, the board has brought about huge change in Irish culture, altering the mindset of people and convincing them to admit when they are wrong.